

GLEBE SOCIETY COMMUNITY FESTIVAL

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS

23-30 June 2019, Harold Park Community Hall, Tramsheds, Forest Lodge

Recorded for posterity ... Glebe| Forest Lodge in print and film

A select bibliography compiled in June 2019 as part of the Glebe Society's 50th Anniversary Celebrations to assist people who want to know more about this interesting part of Sydney, or those who are interested in, or, who are wishing to undertake research, into the history of the suburbs of Glebe and Forest Lodge.

A selection of the interesting books, DVDs, audio CDs, publications and articles on various aspects of Glebe and Forest Lodge will be on show. A mix of fact and fiction, some tell stories of local people, places, key events, while many used Glebe/Forest Lodge as an interesting film backdrop.

The first part provides a listing of books, articles, DVDs, audio CDs, publications and articles on various aspects of Glebe and Forest Lodge.

The second part of this directory sets out research resources available and provides a guide to techniques on doing your own local research (research tools, data bases, organisations, books, and key resources).

It is not a definitive listing and may be added to over time.

14. Social Conditions

Beauchamp, Carl and Weir, Geoff, (editor.) Come home you little bastards. Editia, Manuka, A.C.T, 2016. Second ed. 2018. Born in inner-Sydney to an alcoholic mother and an absent father, Carl Beauchamp and his brother Neville ran wild until they were taken into care. That care turned out to be a nightmare, with the boys placed in separate boys' homes, and in Carl's case into the hands of sexual predators at the Charlton Boys Home in Glebe. Now demolished today the area consists of housing units between Charlton Lane, Avona Street and Forsyth Street.

Wilding, Michael wrote stories, Aspects of the Dying Process (1972), and a novel, Living Together (1974), set in and around Balmain, Glebe and Paddington. <https://sydneyreviewofbooks.com/michael-wilding-crime-fiction/>

Smith, Bernard The Boy Adeodatus (1984), Those who know Bernard Smith, scholar and interpreter of the visual arts, will rightly expect his autobiography to be unconventional. No one can help fail to find it extraordinarily moving. This is the story of an illegitimate son and of the mother who decided to keep rather than destroy him. It is the story, too, of a foster mother who loved children, and of her extended family. Begun in homage to both mothers, the book also became the story of a son's search for the sexual vitality of his lost father. Highly acclaimed by critics, this extraordinary and moving autobiography recreates vividly the atmosphere of a Sydney suburb around World War I, and subtly explores the changing times and values of his childhood and youth.

1. The Dictionary of Sydney

<https://dictionaryofsydney.org/place/glebe>

https://dictionaryofsydney.org/place/forest\_lodge

A good place to start is with The Dictionary of Sydney which is a website about the history of Sydney – its urban myths, characters, political players, writers, dreamers, intellectuals, sports people, criminals – anyone and everything that contributes to Sydney’s story. Conceived in 2004, The Dictionary of Sydney is an independent, not-for-profit organisation. It grew out of an Australian Research Council project supported by the University of Sydney in partnership with University of Technology, Sydney (UTS), State Library of New South Wales and State Records, with the City of Sydney as industry partner. Launched in November 2009, since 2017, the Dictionary’s major partner has been the State Library of New South Wales. However, In September 2018, the Dictionary of Sydney Inc was wound up and management of the Dictionary passed to the State Library of New South Wales. As the Dictionary has no ongoing financial support, publication of new content will cease when funding runs out. Max Solling, has written a summary of the history of Glebe and Forest Lodge and included his references, which will be useful for people’s further research

2. Trove

Trove <https://trove.nla.gov.au/> Trove is yours, a database, created and maintained by the National Library of Australia. Combined catalogue of Australian libraries. (No login or password required)

Trove helps you find and use resources relating to Australia. i.e. books, images, historic newspapers, maps, music, archives and more. It’s more than a search engine. Trove is a data base which brings together content from libraries, museums, archives, repositories and other research and collecting organisations, big and small.. Trove is many things: a community, a set of services, an aggregation of metadata, and a growing repository of full text digital resources.

However, in most cases what you'll find in Trove is information about resources, or metadata, rather than copies of the items themselves. Depending on the type of item and where the metadata has come from, there'll be various ways for you to get a copy. (either purchase ,borrow from a library or a digital resource e.g. view online )

The number of results is enormous, as follows:

	Glebe	Forest Lodge
Books	883	1,352
Diaries, letters, archives	300	68
Digitised newspapers and more	707,210	2,028,576
Government gazettes	26,917	101,576
Journals , articles and Data sets	18,392	6,536

Lists	472	357
Maps	147	17
Music , sound and video	401	264
People and organisations	581	21
Pictures, photos and objects	3,371	286

3. Archived websites (1996 – now)

Snapshots of websites, web pages and online publications about Australia and Australians collected since 1996.

You can also do an advanced search <https://trove.nla.gov.au/?q&adv=y> and enter search terms in one or more of the fields: Keyword , Title, Creator or Subject

You will however need to be careful with some items as they are still listed as being at Leichhardt Library, despite the fact that Glebe became part of the City of Sydney in 2003.

4. State Library of NSW

State Library of NSW

<https://www.sl.nsw.gov.au/>

The Library collects a broad and representative range of published and original material, including rare printed material, originating in New South Wales, Australia and internationally. Under legal deposit, the Library receives all material published in New South Wales so as to preserve and make accessible the published record of the state.

You don't need a Library card to use the material on the shelves in the reading rooms.

It is a reference library so items are not for lending directly to you. However, some of the Library's books and other collection material be borrowed through other libraries. Speak to your public, academic or work library about requesting an interlibrary loan, usually for a small charge.

Use the Library's single search catalogue to <https://www.sl.nsw.gov.au/research-and-collections#search-the-catalogue> to find material in the Library's collections including published, unpublished material and most e-resources. Get a Library card to request and use material from the Library's collections including er-esources.

With a Library card, you can use most of the Library's e-resources from anywhere, anytime - you just need to be a New South Wales resident. Don't have a Library card but have a NSW public library card? Register your card to get instant access to the Library's e-resources. Your City of Sydney Library card can now provide access to a selection of State Library of NSW online research resources.

5. City of Sydney Library Services

The City of Sydney Library Service

<https://www.cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au/explore/libraries>

Glebe Branch Library has a special Local History Collection kept in a separate locked cabinet which contains books and other resources. In the drawers below the glass cabinet is the Local History Vertical file which is a collection of newspaper clippings collected over many years before information became readily available through digitisation.

The Library Service provides access to research databases which fall into 2 categories – those you can access from home, and those you can access in library:

<https://www.cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au/explore/libraries/collections/research-homework-databases>

Unless otherwise noted, the login for home research databases is your membership number without spaces.
